

The Harpenden Pop up exhibition in October connected to Herts Open Studio went very well, with great sales, the best I have accomplished to date for a group exhibition. I did invigilate for 6 days which I think helped as many people were very interested in my printing process, which was great.

We went on our annual holiday to the USA to recharge - well that did not happen. My husband had a frightening DVT, so not a good time and so glad to be back in the UK. The only good thing to come out of this so called holiday was the compulsory resting due to mobility problems which gave me time to write in full, the second Master class booklet 'All that glitters - can be gold' - still got the big job of the photography and the layout but it will hopefully be ready early next year - so pleased with that. But, I now know these books or any book takes a lot longer than you think.

'All Cracked Up' - my first Master class booklet is selling well and I have received some lovely testimonials.
